News from Roseberry School

Mobile phone survey

Mobile access among our pupils is not bad for the older ones but not so good among the families of younger pupils. It seems families of older children have made special efforts to acquire a phone to help their children's education

Our oldest ex pupil

Director Rachana passed on a short video from our oldest ex pupil Manoj Tamang. In beautiful English he introduced himself and explained that he has now completed his schooling and is studying at a Darjeeling college for a career in Hotel Management. We are all very proud of his achievements.

Letter from Helen Jones

When we set up this charity and opened a tiny school in Darjeeling, we had no idea of the challenges we would have to face as the school grew. Nor did we have any idea what a powerful force for the good Roseberry School would become, helping to lift disadvantaged children towards a brighter future. On top of the normal ups and downs of school life, the Darjeeling team have had to cope with civil unrest, strikes and school closures, together with earthquakes, drought, heavy monsoon rains, and landslides. Throughout it all, the work of the school carried on, becoming ever more successful in its mission to educate deprived local children. During the 18 months that Indian primary schools have now been closed by Covid 19, our poorly paid teachers have pulled together to do what they could for the children, making themselves available to parents and finding ever more inventive ways to keep the children interested and motivated. In common with so many children and teachers all over the world, they have had to make do with mobile phones to communicate
